questions: brsalamin@dcds.edu

Working collaboratively in this creative and hands-on setting, students will create a short film from beginning to end. From the writing and planning process, to studio and on-location shooting, to editing, all students will learn what it takes to create a high quality short film. Campers will be working with the Upper School Conservatory Film Program director, Brett Salamin, and recent DCDS film student graduates to provide the most comprehensive and complete filmmaking experience. During the first week of film camp, students will learn how to write, plan, shoot, mic, light and edit. During the second week of camp, students will collaborate with campers from the "Acting for Film" camp to bring their vision to life.

BE A MOVIE STAR: ACTING FOR FILM

Building confidence is one the pillars to success in the classroom. What better way to do this than by developing the character within your child and turning them into a 'Movie Star'. Working with experienced actor, director and filmmaker, Upper School teacher, Brett Salamin, your child will not only gain confidence, but will also be given the tools necessary to begin his/her journey as an actor on the screen (and on the stage). Whether your child has no experience or has already graced the DCDS or community stage, this camp will enhance his/her skills and provide a fun and engaging experience. Campers will be working with Brett Salamin and recent DCDS acting student graduates to provide the most comprehensive and complete acting experience. During the first week of camp, students will work on movement, character analysis, humanization of speech, facial expressions and more. During the second week of camp, students will collaborate with campers from "Let's Make a Movie" to create an original short film. Your child will be one of the cast members of the film. Space is limited to 6 campers.
